SUBTERRANEAN RIVERS.

Yucatan's Only Streams Flow Beneath Coral Rock.

There are no streams in Yucatan which flow above the ground, but the whole peninsula is one vast table of coral rock and beneath it are immense sheets of fresh water, with regular though ill defined tides and currents. Along the coasts these subterranean waters are quite near the surface, but in the interior, where the calcareous layer is of great thickness, the waters are low down. At intervals they break into caverns formed by earthquakes by pressure of their own force or by the infiltration of surface water into the natural grottoes of the coral rock and wherever the water can be reached, whether through artificial pits or by the operations of nature, the place is called a cenote. There are a great many of them scattered all over Yucatan, and those near Merida are utilized as public bathhouses, affording most refreshing resorts.

Centuries ago the Indians marked the courses of the subterranean rivers by heaps of stones and always built their cities close by the water caves, as their ruins show, and it is interesting to note to this day all the civilized centers of Yucatan have arisen around these natural reservoirs. There are many forms of cenotes. When the water flows at a slight depth and the calcareous layer has been only partially eaten away there follows an irregular sinking, which forms a cave, opening from side to side, but when the crust is thicker and the underground stream has a regular course the soil is generally corroded in a circular space and the vault thus formed, lacking support, falls in, making an immense open well. Often the crust is so deep that the soft parts only crumble down, leaving a small aperture toward the top, fashioning a real grotto, with stalactites and stalagmites galore. Again, it happens that the crust is exceedingly thick, when a colossal subterranean passage, like a tunnel, is formed. In short, all the variations which an undisturbed stream may produce in a friable soil by the silent work of ages may be here witnessed. The cenote of which I write is a natural cavern nearly fifty feet deep, broken down at one side, thus forming a gigantic arch. Within it appears every form of stalagmite and stalactite, and its roof is perforated with holes, in which are thousands of birds' and hornets' nests. At the bottom of it, reached by a flight of stone steps from the charming garden above, is an extensive sheet of clear, fresh water, containing a multitude of tiny fish (Pescado cenote) similar to those found in the Mammoth cave of Kentucky, only these are not eyeless. The overhanging roots of trees fringe its broken arch, affording shelter to innumerable lizards and iguanas, which dart along the ledges like embodied sunbeams, while above them countless swallows circle in masses so dense that the whirling of their wings produces a deafening noise, echoed from below in hollow reverberations.

The Italian Baby.

No infant receives a warmer welcome to the world or is more happily born than the Italian baby. No infant is the object of more caresses or is more fondly admired. Indeed, no matter how poor the mother and father may be, no matter how large the family, they have very merry times when another son or daughter comes to them. The neighbors are invited in, a feast is prepared, a gallon or two of cheap wine is procured, and the merriment sometimes lasts several days. The Italian considers there are only three great events in the life of man—namely, his birth, marriage and death. These three events never pass without a gorgeous and elaborate celebration. In this simple way they strive to carry out the tender life lesson: "When you were born you wept while those around you smiled. So live that when you die you alone may smile and those around you weep." And so they laugh and drink wine and sing, for they believe it will have an effect upon the life of the quivering form soon to take its place among them.—London Standard.

ANOTHER BIG DAY.

Everything Looks Rosy for Bourbon Home-Coming.

The way things are looking Paris will have another big day on June 19, when the ex-Parisians and ex-Bourbons will be here at our home-coming.

Everybody seems to be taking interest and assisting in every way to make the day a success is being offered. Judge Dundon has offered the basement of the Court House for the lunch, etc. Speeches will be made by our best orators, the Elks' Band will furnish the music and it will be but another gala day in our old town.

We are requested to remind the ladies on the Committees about the meeting at the Court House, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the final arrangements. We can count on them being on hand with good reports, for Bourbon county women never fail in anything they undertake.

The meeting at the Court House will be held in the County Court room, and Commissioner Hinton wants all of the ladies who are not on the Committee, who feel interest in this matter, to be present at this meeting tomorrow afternoon. So please remember ladies, all of you are invited.

A. J. Winters & Co. have moved. Rather Peculiar Action.

Morehead & Company, stock brokers of Cincinnati, filed suit Wednesday at Lexington against the Lexington Bank and Trust Company to secure $12,156.95, which the plaintiffs allege had been deposited to their credit in the bank. The suit grows out of certain stock speculations of Attorney C. J. Bronston, of that city, through the Board of Trade, which is the Lexington correspondent for Morehead and Company. The answer will be filed by Morton, Webb and Wilson, attorneys for the Lexington Banking and Trust Company. The bank will ask to be allowed to deposit the $12,156.95 without the court to make the proper disposition of it.

It seems that Mr. Bronston ordered the bank not to honor the check. Nobody in connection with the Bronston side will talk and it looks rather peculiar. Can it be possible that somebody is welsching.

A. J. Winters & Co. have moved $20,000 Donation.

At the commencement exercises at State College yesterday morning President James K. Patterson sprang an agreeable surprise upon the large assembly of friends by announcing that he had been able within the last few days to procure the necessary funds for the erection on the college grounds a library building which would meet all the requirement of the college.

The funds, which amounted to $20,000 is the gift of Andrew Carnegie, the philanthropist and steel magnate. The news was very gratifying to the large assemblage of college friends and the President's announcement was received with warm applause.

A Few Pointers on Plumbing.

First, the way to get a good job of plumbing is to get good material; then to get it put in right you must get a good plumber. Health must be considered as we go along, you take an unsanitary job of plumbing it is the most injurious thing known to the health today. It takes experience to find these things out. To do a first class sanitary job in plumbing you must know how to do it, because water runs to a bath tub and from it is no sign that your job is sanitary. If in doubt of this call either 'phone 229 or see

A Town Wiped Out.

A tornado struck Gossel, a German Mennonite settlement 15 miles southwest of Hillsboro, Kas., yesterday. The town was practically destroyed, about 80 persons being injured. The most seriously hurt are Katie Hendricks, 12; Henry Ratzlaff, farmer, may die; Dr. Peter Richert, Rev. John Toeye. The tornado laid waste a strip 200 yards wide. Several stores and twelve residences were demolished and every residence in town damaged. Classen Mill and the German Parochial school, nearing completion, were wrecked. The large Mennonite hospital is only slightly damaged.

Suit for Back Taxes.

Sheriff John McElroy, of Fayette county, filed suit against the Adams Express Company to recover back taxes on their franchise and business in Lexington for five years. The amount stated in the suit for each year is $20,000; in other words if the company loses the suit it will have to pay back taxes on $100,000 for one year. The rate of taxation from 1901 to 1905, inclusive, averages about eighty cents on the hundred dollars, so that the company owes $8,000 back taxes with an additional twenty per cent. penalty, making a total of $9,600. The statements were filed and summons were issued on the company returnable June 11.
